Sec. 9-1.3100:

Purposes

The city recognizes the need for signs as a means to identify businesses within the community. The city finds that signing is an important design element of the physical environment. The city is committed to preserving and improving its appearance and is striving to provide an economically stable and visually attractive community through site planning, building design, landscaping and signing. As a planned architectural feature, a sign can be pleasing and can harmonize with physical character of its environment. The city finds that some signs detract from the city's aesthetic value and have the result of decreasing property values. The city finds further, that some signs present a hazard to both pedestrians and motorists. The city is committed to eliminating this hazard, to preserving the city's aesthetic value, and to preserving and maintaining the property values of parcels located within the city. The following regulations set forth standards for the number, placement, height, size, and illumination of signs in order to achieve these purposes:

- A. To maintain the attractiveness and orderliness of the City's appearance by avoiding sign clutter;
- B. To protect office, commercial, industrial, institutional and public uses from the loss of visual prominence resulting from excessive signing on nearby sites;
- C. To protect residentially zoned areas lying adjacent to commercial and industrial areas from the negative effects of excessive signs;
- D. To enable users of goods and services to identify establishments offering services to meet their needs;

- E. To regulate the number and size of signs according to standards consistent with the types of establishments in each zoning district;
- F. Promote traffic safety through appropriate and reasonable controls on signs.
- G. To protect the health and safety and welfare of the residents of the city from hazards resulting from improper, excessive, distracting and otherwise unsafe signage.

2. It is recognized that there have been abuses in the placement of political signs within the City including trespassing upon private property; placement without permission from the property owner; placement in such a fashion as to make it difficult to remove them; littering caused by dislodged political signs; sight distance hazards to traffic because of size and location; distracting appearance; aesthetically displeasing impact; unnecessary proliferation; and other reasons, all of which are determined to be contrary to the best interests of the community and in opposition to the public health, safety and welfare.
3. The reasonable regulation of political signs will obviate many of the objections that have been raised to the unregulated placement of such signs.
4. It is recognized that to the extent that placement of political signs is not contrary to the intent and purposes stated herein, it is in the best interests of the City and its inhabitants to allow political expression, and, for that reason, it is but to avoid the total prohibition of such signs.
5. It is believed that responsibility for the placement of political signs should lie with the candidate for public office, the proponents and opponents of ballot issues, and the various committees connected therewith. It is recognized that political signs are printed by or at the direction of those listed herein and that the ultimate responsibility for the distribution of such signs and where they are placed lies with them.

Sec. 9-1.3185:Design Guidelines

This section outlines recommended guidelines for the location and design of various sign types and are in addition to the standards presented above.

- Signs are to be consistent in scale and design with the buildings or use they identify. This includes overall height, width and shape of signs, to avoid being out-of-scale with the building.
- Use sign materials consistent with associated buildings or structures. Both supporting structures as well as main body of the sign should reflect the same type of materials and construction techniques as the structure or land use associated with the sign.
- Sign colors should be limited to a maximum of two colors, plus white. Ideally, chosen colors should be consistent or complementary with colors used for adjacent buildings. This will simplify the message conveyed by the sign.
- Within shopping centers, office parks and industrial complexes, all signs should conform to a master sign program, whereby each user or occupant is given an equitable amount of sign area and all signs exhibit a consistent, high quality appearance.
- Signs should be sited to be integrated with landscape and parking areas. Appropriate sign placement can enhance landscape elements and will avoid blocking visibility for motorists at driveways and intersections.

- Signs should target both the motoring public as well as pedestrian foot traffic. The overall size, location, orientation and lettering size is different for both groups, and sign plans should recognize the needs of each.
- Locate signs near front entrances to retail stores. This can assist with increasing patronage of stores and business establishments.
- Illumination of signs should be restricted or eliminated adjacent to residential areas. If possible, illumination may be screened or shielded by appropriate placement of signs or use of landscape screening material.
- Avoid use of aluminum "canister" type signs whenever possible. Instead, make use of wood, channel or cut out letters and numerals. If illumination is desired, consider indirect illumination or channel lit letters.
- Limit the use of characters per sign. This will avoid a cluttered appearance and increase the chance that the user's message is received by passersby.
- Where possible, franchised business signs should be included within comprehensive sign programs in terms of sign size and shape. National and regional business identification programs should be accommodated to the extent possible.

RESIDENTIAL SIGNS

- Signs in residential districts should be "low key" in terms of design and location. This is consistent with the overall intent and purpose of Residential districts within Ontario.
- Permanent subdivision entry signs shall be constructed of high quality, long lasting materials to enhance the character and appearance of the surrounding neighborhood. If possible, design themes established within adjacent subdivisions should be reflected in the design of entry signs. This assists in promoting cohesive identifiable neighborhoods in the community.
- Multi-family complex identification signs should be consistent with the buildings they identify, including design, appearance and use of materials.

COMMERCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL SIGNS

WALL SIGN GUIDELINES

- Wall signs should be architecturally integrated with the building or use it identifies. Appropriate size, design and placement of wall signs in harmony with a building adds to the overall appearance of that building and helps convey a feeling of quality.
- Within shopping centers and business parks, allowed wall sign area should be equitably apportioned among all tenants. This permits all businesses an opportunity for identification of their respective locations.
- Wall signs should be placed so as not to obscure or interfere with unique architectural features or details. This is especially important in downtown Ontario, which has a large number of historic buildings.

FREESTANDING (MONUMENT) SIGN GUIDELINES

- Freeway signs should be appropriately integrated with other land uses on site. This includes proper arrangements between adjacent freeways, parking and landscaped areas, buildings, and other signs on a site.

- Complex and building freestanding signs should be used to allow easy identification of site uses. Such signs should include the name of the complex (if applicable), street addresses, business names and/or logos. These freestanding signs should not be used for advertising purposes.
- Color and materials of freestanding signs should be consistent with other structures on the site, including buildings and other signs. Ideally, freestanding signs should be included as a component of a comprehensive sign program.
- Freestanding signs should be placed on a substantial, solid base of complementary material. Avoid use of metal or wooden poles to support freestanding signs. If possible, sign bases should be fabricated of high quality material consistent with the main building on the site.
- Freestanding signs should be located within landscaped planter areas to present a pleasing streetscape appearance. Avoid placing freestanding signs in locations to block motorist views.

PAINTED WALL DECORATIONS (MURALS)

- Murals are to be original, non-commercial works of art, uniquely designed for the specific location it is proposed. Ideally, murals should depict the historic character of the community or reflect the environmental setting of Ontario.
- Murals must complement the architectural features of the building or complex of building on which it is placed in terms of scale and general style.
- Murals are intended to enhance the quality of the area in which it is located and the entire community. They should not serve to direct attention to a specific business, product or service.
